Krieg DeVault's Amy Schwarz Selected for Women's Fund of Central Indiana OPTIONS Class 25

December 19, 2025

Krieg DeVault is pleased to announce that Amy E. Schwarz, Director of Association Management and Strategic Initiatives, has been selected to join OPTIONS Class 25, a women's philanthropy program of Women's Fund of Central Indiana. The 2025–2026 cohort comprises 21 leaders who will deepen their understanding of issues affecting women and girls and collectively direct resources where they are most needed.

Administered by Women's Fund of Central Indiana, the 10-month OPTIONS program equips participants to “get smart about critical issues impacting women and girls and to learn how to use their work, wealth, and wisdom to help build a community where women and girls can thrive,” through monthly sessions, community exploration, and collaborative grantmaking. More than 500 alumnae have amplified their philanthropic voice through OPTIONS to date.

“OPTIONS is about women learning together and showing up for their community in thoughtful, intentional ways. We are proud to welcome Class 25 and eager to see how they will learn from local partners and direct resources where they are most needed,” said Tamara Winfrey-Harris, president of Women's Fund of Central Indiana.

About Amy E. Schwarz

Amy E. Schwarz is a member of Krieg DeVault's Governmental Affairs & Public Advocacy Practice Group, where she serves as Director of Association Management and Strategic Initiatives.
