October 6, 2020

Krieg DeVault LLP is proud to announce the launch of LM Safety Solutions - a new legal-medical partnership, with the sole focus of improving the safety of your organization. With the evolving challenges presented by COVID-19 and other infectious diseases, the LM Safety Solutions' infectious disease physicians and legal consultants design proactive plans, as well as tailored responses to urgent concerns.

LM Safety Solutions draws upon its combined knowledge of prior pandemics, current epidemiological trends, the latest medical research, and state, federal, and local safety requirements. This results in a health and safety plan that incorporates best practices and complies with the evolving regulations in the fields of health care, employment law, education law, and occupational health and safety. When a client engages LM Safety Solutions, its experts create a purpose-built solution that meets each business's specific challenges.

LM Safety Solutions' medical consultants have over 50 years of combined experience in infectious disease management (from children to the elderly), as well as extensive experience with prior infectious disease crises, including the 2020 COVID, 2009 H1N1, and 2014 Ebola pandemics. In addition, our risk management and legal consultants focus on numerous industries with unique issues, including universities, private school systems, cities and towns, and athletic teams and associations.

"Our team of infectious disease physicians and lawyers work closely together to help businesses remain proactive and reactive in response to urgent health concerns," says Dr. Markian Bochan. "What sets us apart is our unique combination of risk management, legal and medical backgrounds, which will allow us to better navigate the challenges of COVID-19 and other emerging infectious diseases. The experience that our team brings to the table will help us tackle the issues faced due to pandemics and highly infectious diseases."

Tom Hutchinson, a legal consultant with LM Safety Solutions, noted "We are excited to have organized a team of legal and medical professionals to provide custom solutions to the challenges caused by COVID-19 and other infectious diseases. These solutions will allow businesses to move beyond 'cookie cutter plans' and increase the safety of their employees, customers, and student."
