Aerospace

Krieg DeVault understands both the advanced technology needs and worldwide business focus necessary for aerospace industry success. Our firm assists a market-leading global provider of integrated power systems for aerospace and other applications with a wide range of corporate, litigation, and intellectual property matters. We have negotiated joint ventures and structured international service networks for aerospace products. Our lawyers – several of whom have aeronautical or astronautical engineering degrees and have worked with sophisticated aerospace technologies in the U.S. Air Force, NASA, and private industry – fully understand the industry's competitive requirements. The result is a practical yet in-depth capability to provide integrated legal and business assistance to aerospace industry companies.